

ICICLE PATROL

I kept hearing some noise coming from my fireplace. It was like something was dripping. So I went to my bedroom door leading to our patio and there it was - a tremendous icicle dripping on the metal cover of the fireplace vent to the outside. However, once I opened the door there was another icicle that was formed right above the door itself. If this would have fallen, your emailer would be writing his emails from a hospital bed. So, I took a broom and started knocking down all the icicles that were in harms way, including the one's that were formed in the front of the house.

My suggestion, check out your icicles and make sure they aren't over anyone's path to your home. If you like, break them off gently and add some flavored syrup to them.
